About the editors

Professor Richard Butler is Emeritus Professor in the Strathclyde Business School of the University of Strathclyde in Glasgow, Scotland.

He has published widely in tourism journals, and produced eleven books on tourism and many chapters in other books. His main fields of interest are the development process of tourist destinations and the subsequent impacts of tourism, issues of carrying capacity and sustainability, and tourism in remote areas and islands. He is currently editor Emeritus of 'The Journal of Tourism and Hospitality Research'.

Dr Wantanee Suntikul is Assistant Professor in Tourism Planning and Development at the Institute For Tourism Studies in Macao, China.

Besides teaching and researching, Wantanee has also been involved in several tourism related consultancy projects in Southeast Asia. Her core research interest and expertise are in the political, social and environmental aspects of tourism planning and development and poverty alleviation.

Acknowledgements

We wish to acknowledge our great thanks to our fellow contributors to this volume, both for their chapters and for their cooperation, understanding, and support for the volume. They have responded to our comments and queries with patience and alacrity, and we hope that they feel their efforts have been justified and that we have not abused their discretion and good will.

We are also grateful to the staff at Goodfellow, our publishers, for their assistance and support during the publication of this work, particularly Sally North who has been with us from the beginning, and whose patience and understanding we really appreciate.

Dedications

This book is dedicated to my dear late father, who passed on his knowledge and passion for politics to his admiring daughter. Thank you for leading me on the first steps of the journey of discovery that inspired this book.

To my late mother, for her support and encouragement, and for convincing me of the value of education and learning, not only for a career but also for life itself.

Wantanee Suntikul

To Margaret, my thanks for help and encouragement during the preparation of this volume, and for your support in so many other ways.

To Tim, thank you so much for teaching me how to remain patient and positive through all the rough spots. My discussions with you have fueled my passion for research and I look forward to many more such discussions with you in the future.
