References and Further Reading

You will find below a selection of recommendations for further reading as well as the sources of material quoted in this book. You will have noticed fewer references in the main body of the book than is normal for an academic text. This was a conscious decision based on three reasons which are set out in the Preface. I wanted to take a broad overview of the subject with a fresh eye and hence used very few academic texts or journal papers in writing the book.

However, if this book is to serve one of its aims, namely to stimulate further research in this field, I feel I should provide signposts to further reading that could generate new research ideas. That is why a selection of some of the most important works in the area are provided by way of recommendations for further reading. I have tried to focus on work published in the last few years, given how rapidly things change in tourism, hospitality and events.

This is still a field which holds enormous potential for future research as there are still so many major gaps in the literature in relation to luxury in tourism, hospitality and events. Chapter 13 discusses some of these opportunities while also offering a critical perspective on current research in this field.
